

Athlete of the Week 4/26/10

Sponsored by Subway Restaurants, this honor is given each week during the school year to the athlete(s) exhibiting the greatest accomplishment or contribution to the schools athletic programs. This recognition takes into consideration not only athletic accomplishment, but also attitude, leadership, and inspiration to others. Come back often and see who the new Athlete of the Week is.

Ryan Jepson and Amanda Taylor don't have much in common in track. He's tall, skinny, and runs distance. She's short, muscular and runs hurdles and sprints. What they do share is knowing what second places feels like. Both Jepson and Taylor run behind teammates who are ranked #1 in the State in their events. So, it's really difficult for either of them to win a race. Last weekend both Jepson and Taylor took second place (in personal records times) for their respective events the 3200m and 300m hurdles in front of a home crowd at the RCI. Although they lost to teammates Justin Rehfeldt and Courtney McKibben (again), Jepson and Taylor have been two of the most consistent point's scorers for the RC track squad. So congratulations Ryan and Amanda. You are this week's Subway Athletes of the Week.
